Graphic Design

Jennifer Perez was born May 30th, 1994. She went to Robert F. Wagner Jr Secondary School of arts and technology, a school she likes to describe as a fun disaster. She graduated from high school in the summer of 2012 and, continued her studies at Queens Borough Community College in the fall of 2012. Two years and a half later she graduated from Queens Borough with an associates degree in science, then transferred on to Queens College. Once enrolled into Queens College she was declared into a Graphic Design major.

At first Jennifer fell in love with art and all of its wonders when she was in third grade. She always enjoyed field trips to different museums. Her most life changing trip was one that took place in the guggenheim, there she saw the painting Starry Night the iconic impressionist painting from Vincent Van Gogh. The moment she saw the painting she fell in love with it, even to this very day. She decided that she loves anything that is related to art work and felt it develop into something she will do in the future, which now leaves us to where she is today. Granted Jennifer also likes to dabble in different art subjects, yet she decided to pursue Graphic Design in the end.

Jennifer decided to major in Design because she decided it was what she was best at doing. Although she enjoys to sculpt and make props, she did not think that she could make a living out of prop making. When Jennifer refers to prop making she is referring to the art of making prop weapons that one would use in a play or better yet comic/anime conventions. People who go to conventions love to cosplay as well known characters, and like to complete their character looks by holding their most common weapon. The

The props she created generally consist of baking clay, wood, PVC pipe, crafting foam, insulation foam, paper mache, and expanding foam. She still makes props as a hobby and gets occasional requests, but in the end she mainly focuses her time on getting her degree so she can move on to a better job so she can make a living.
